We’re in it for the long haul... So families can THRIVE!

Mr. Morrison is a single father to his four-year-old son, Hasir, who lives with cerebral palsy. Mr. Morrison was struggling financially while serving as his son’s full-time caregiver. That’s when a friend referred him to Martha’s Table, and he met Ra’Chelle Dennis, our Family Engagement Specialist. Enrolling in THRIVE with Martha’s Table made all the difference for Mr. Morrison.

With your bold support, Martha’s Table has been leading the way with innovative direct cash assistance programs. Our THRIVE East of the River program, in partnership with four local organizations, supported 590 D.C. families with vital cash assistance and essential resources.

“I felt as though Ra’Chelle tried her best to come through with any resources or outlets that she could,” Mr. Morrison remembered. “I couldn’t thank her enough. I feel as though she’s really trying to extend her hand to make sure I get the best resources and help that I can get.”

Did you know that a recent THRIVE report from the Urban Institute found that cash assistance significantly reduces household stress?

“The financial support was able to help me pay my bills and not be so stressed,” he remembered with relief. “It allowed me to focus on parenting a little more because when you focus on bills, it’s hard for you to be in the best space, emotionally and physically.”

You donate critical funds to support D.C. neighbors.

Neighbors enjoy nutritious meals with fresh fruits, vegetables, and shelf-stable food from our markets or from McKenna’s Wagon.

We purchase healthy food from the Capital Area Food Bank and other sources at sustainable prices.

Each day, volunteers help pack 1,000 grocery bags for our markets and prepare delicious meals for our nightly McKenna’s Wagon program.

Our health specialists, including a dietitian, prepare menus with nutritious seasonal foods for our markets and our nightly McKenna’s Wagon meals.

372,447 meals distributed through our markets

33,861 meals served through McKenna’s Wagon

2,577 volunteer hours supported our food access programs

So our families can THRIVE…continued

“Mr. Morrison has truly given me hope and continued drive,” Ra’Chelle shared.

With Martha’s Table in his corner, Mr. Morrison is also proud to be an advocate for other parents walking similar paths. Through his Youtube page, “Hasir Hero,” he aims to bring awareness to the day-to-day realities, triumphs and experiences of being a single father who is the primary caregiver of a child with special needs.

“In the last year, I became a single father raising a child with disabilities,” he shared. “I want to bring light to others who are in a similar situation and give an example of how I manage Hasir…bring a witness to how much he’s overcome, how much he’s pushing!”

Mr. Morrison also joined our Fathers to the Front program this year. Fathers to the Front is a supportive space for male caregivers to come together, share their stories, and uplift one another.

For Mr. Morrison, a big source of strength comes directly from Hasir’s resilient attitude. “He never gives up,” Mr. Morrison marveled. “He’s always trying to do something. Even when I stand him up and he falls…he gets right back up.”

Neighbors like Mr. Morrison and Hasir inspire us at Martha’s Table every single day and remind us why our work is so important. Thank you for helping families like Mr. Morrison’s thrive!

We’re in it for the long haul… Supporting D.C. neighborhoods

Every year, Martha’s Table volunteers and neighbors come together to celebrate the legacy of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. with meaningful community projects. In 2022, we are going ALL IN for our community, including with an expanded MLK day of service. This year, we brought a team of volunteers together for a special grocery distribution, clothing drive, and revitalization of nearby community spaces.

Bringing warmth and joy to our neighbors, Martha’s Table volunteers transformed community spaces at Washington Highlands and Cedar Heights Community Centers into welcoming hubs for children and families to enjoy for years to come!

We’re in it for the long haul…Inspiring future educators

Food and nutrition are at the heart of Martha’s Table. The beautiful transformation of our community garden shows how healthy food also builds community ties. In 2021, our Outreach and Engagement Manager, Erica Lonesome, partnered with Love and Carrots to transform land at our headquarters into a vibrant garden.

Stepping into our garden, you are now greeted by lush plants and striking views of our city.

“IT’s a beautiful thing to see where your food comes from and get to connect with it;” the Love and Carrots team shared. “IT’s an opportunity to learn more about the time and energy it takes for food to come to the table.”

Our garden is designed as a space for our community to come together, learn about healthy food and home gardening, and nurture new growth. One of the greatest joys has been seeing our young children learning in the garden. As the weather warms, our young learners love to visit the Little Library in the garden and have striking views of our city.

“Children visiting the garden learn where food comes from, how food grows, and the science behind gardening,” Erica explained. “They’ll even get to learn about photosynthesis and the impact of climate change on plants growing!”

Thank you for helping bring our young learners and D.C. community together around the joys of healthy food.

“One of the times we were there, was a big group of kids around a bed, and they all immediately dug their hands in the soil. The tactile part of gardening is really joyful for kids. IT’s nice to see that!”

Shernice knows the impact teachers have in early learning classrooms. She shared, “Our programming is nationally accredited. We have a curriculum, guidelines, and routines that help our children seamlessly transition into the pre-kindergarten setting. We’re committed to our kids!”

With our new career pathway partnership, we will support 300 women like Shernice in their teaching careers! With your support, women will receive access to scholarships, stipends for child care and transportation, and the full suite of Martha’s Table programming while furthering their education. They will also have the opportunity to complete hands-on hours in our classrooms, participate in financial coaching with LIFT-DC, and receive academic and exam tutoring.

This program removes barriers and forges new pathways for current and aspiring early education professionals to earn their credentials and advance their careers.

We are grateful to American University, Trinity Washington University, LIFT-DC, Venture Philanthropy Partners +Raise DC, JPMorgan Chase, and the Urban Institute for their partnership on this initiative.

For moms like Shernice, this program will provide opportunities to turn professional dreams into reality! “I am proud to say that I’m living my passion! It’s exciting to know that other mothers will have the opportunity to pursue their passion for early childhood education as well through this amazing partnership” Shernice celebrated.

“We’re proud of the hard work our teachers put in every single day to help our young learners thrive. Your support helps keep our teachers and classrooms STRONG!”

Take Action: Join our group of 430+ monthly Apple Corps supporters today and help fill D.C. dinner tables with fresh, healthy meals 365 days a year.

Did you know that your gift today could help fund a $1,000 child savings account for a young learner in our early education program?

Children with just $499 in school savings are 4x more likely to graduate college
